

Screenshots of the output of part 3-1

Theory of operation part one

We started off by making an interface class which only contains methods that are declarable but not implementable. We then created a class that implements that interface, this way this class adopts all the methods inside this interface class. After that we implemented those methods and did some sysout print statements.